

Mona Lisa Harrison
Petitioner,

v.

CIV. ACT. NO. - 06-434 GMS

Patrick Ryan, Warden

Respondents,

June 22, 2007

Probable Cause To Appeal

In light of the 1988 murder conviction case of Vicky Chao - petitioner request a certificate for probable cause to appeal. Based on the Supreme Courts ruling that a felony murder requires not only that a killing occurs during the commission of a felony, but that the killing is intended to help carry out the felony. That the killing was not the intent to carry out the felony in the petitioners case. Petitioners only intent was to ride along. Petitioner never left the car.

With Mrs. Chao's case coming into view - it also applies to petitioner. No intent to kill or harm. So, therefore petitioner prays the court grant a certificate for appeal.
